Day care in Alberta has had a remarkably durable history as a controversial issue. Since the late 1950s, disputes over day care programs, policies, and funding have been a recurring feature of political life in the province. Alberta's Day Care Controversy traces the development of day care policies and programs in Alberta, with particular emphasis on policy decisions and program initiatives that have provoked considerable debate and struggle.

Christopher Smith

Across Canada the provinces approach the funding and delivery of early childhood education and care in different ways – although the emerging trend is for provinces to scale-up and join up services to create a more comprehensive and integrated system. While Alberta, in common with most other provinces, has recently increased its public investments in early learning and care, it has done so within the context of an existing approach that is complex and fractured.
